March 19, 2021

New Jersey has been and remains dedicated to protecting the health and safety of our residents and workers during the Covid-19 pandemic. New Jersey's agriculture community, especially farm workers, are vital members of society and the food supply chain.

The New Jersey Department of Health, Labor and Workforce Development, and Agriculture are all working hard to ensure equitable access to Covid-19 testing and vaccinations for farm workers.

In an effort to share information related to NJ's response to Covid-19, provide updates on mitigation efforts and guidance, provide science-based information on the Covid vaccines, and answer questions the New Jersey Department of Health along with the Departments of Agriculture and Department of Labor and Workforce Development will host an Ag Stakeholder Engagement Call on May 25 at 2:00 p.m.

See the meeting information below to join us on a virtual Teams call.

Hoping you can join us!

Sincerely,

Douglas Fisher
